San Salvador is one of the South Eastern most islands in the Bahamas chain and is perched on a pinnacle washed by warm breezes and clear azure waters. Most dive sites are located close by on the leeward side of the island keeping rough seas at bay. San Salvador is one of the top five wall-diving destinations in the region and underwater visibility normally exceeds 100 feet.

Shark lovers will be pleased to hear that San Salvador is home to many shark species, the Scalloped Hammerheads being a favorite with visiting divers. Hammerheads are not an aggressive shark, but their size, crazy-shaped head and eye placement on either end of their head does make the spotting of them more than a bit exciting! Caribbean Reef Sharks are also frequent visitors, and our reef fish are more than abundant.
